The World and World-Making in Art (Canberra, 11–13 Aug 11)

Aug 11-13, 2011

Deadline: Mar 3, 2011

Caroline Turner, Australian National University

The World and World-Making in Art: Connectivities and Differences Humanities Research Centre, Australian National University, Canberra, Australia 11-13 August 2011

This international conference coincides with the Humanities Research Centre's theme for 2011 on 'The World and World-Making in the Humanities and the Arts'. It complements two further HRC conferences in 2011 on World Literature and World History.

The conference will explore a number of key issues in art discourses today and also address a central concern of the HRC's theme in invoking the idea of world-making beyond cultural divides and instead, speaking 'to a domain of human connectivity'. We seek to explore the significance of connectivities and differences in the field of art: its practices, histories, institutions, inclusions and exclusions, ethical concerns and theoretical and methodological approaches under the overarching theme of 'the World and World-Making'. While much of the focus of the conference will inevitably be on contemporary transformations resulting in part from globalization and geopolitical changes in our world, including migrations and transnational movements of people and art as well as new means of human connectivity and cultural exchange, we also welcome papers that address historical dimensions of the theme of 'the World and World-Making in Art'.

The conference will be organized around 4 key sub themes:

- 1) World-Making and the concept of 'Global Art': Connectivities and Differences
- 2) Cosmopolitanism
- 3) Crossing Borders: artists, institutions, exhibitions and audiences
- 4) Indigenous World-Making in art

Issues we wish to address include:

Postcolonialism, old and new empires, art and key 'world' concerns such as global conflict, the environment and human rights, Indigenous world-making, new technologies, new media and new means of connectivity in art, 'world' exhibitions such as Biennales, art outside the museum/ institutional context, art markets and art-world systems, redefinitions that may question 'nation- or region-centric paradigms of knowledge making' and the challenge of moving beyond a EuroAmericentric 'world view'.

Short Abstracts of approximately 300 words and a short biography should be sent to Caroline Turner (caroline.turner@anu.edu.au<mailto:caroline.turner@anu.edu.au>) Time allowed for the
