

World Art – First Issue Now Available Online

Jennifer Roberts, Oxford

First Issue Now Available Free Online

The first issue of World Art is now available online. Throughout 2011 we are offering free online access to this issue.

Editorial

The Editors

Studies: research article

What you see you don't see: Lisa Reihana's Digital Marae

Cassandra Barnett

Intervention: position piece

World art: a boundary issue

Charlotte Townsend-Gault

'Good to think': the historiography of intercultural art studies

Wilfried van Damme

Sensing and making sense: art-things in a small part of the world

Anitra Nettleton

Studies: visual essay

Perspicacité: the art of George Nuku

George Nuku

Intervention: position piece

Post-colonial perils: art and national impossibilities

Patrick D. Flores

The promise and the search

Michael Tucker

Doing world art history with modern and contemporary Asian art

John Clark

Studies: research article

Le Songe Creux - between literati theory, Minimalism and Maximalism

Frank Vigneron

Intervention: position piece

World art: Ways Forward, and a way to escape the 'autonomy of culture' delusion

John Onians

From the ancient world to world art

Caroline Vout

Making sense of world art: an archaeological perspective

Robin Skeates

Find out more at www.informaworld.com/rwor

Reference:

TOC: World Art - First Issue Now Available Online. In: ArtHist.net, Mar 11, 2011 (accessed Jul 15, 2025), <<https://arthist.net/archive/1045>>.