CFP: ART AND DESIGN EDUCATION IN TIMES OF CHANGE

Looking back in history, we see that art education has repeatedly been exposed to all kinds of challenges brought on by political and societal changes. Today we face new historical challenges we never had expected. Starting with the crash of the financial markets in summer 2008, the current global economic crisis is the worst the world has seen since the Great Depression of the 1930s. In 2015 the UNHCR counted more than a million migrants and refugees crossing into Europe driven by the conflicts in Syria, Afghanistan, Eritrea or Kosovo. For 2016, Ericsson predicts more than two billion smart phone users worldwide; by 2020 smartphones will account for as much as 80 percent of all mobile data traffic. In response to these intertwined phenomena of global financial crisis, mass migration and the pervasion of new technologies in everyday life, the demand for new participatory approaches in governance, education and culture is growing fast.

At the very first InSEA conference to be held in Vienna, practitioners and theoreticians are invited to discuss the role of art and design education in current times of change - through theoretical reflections, historical and empirical analysis, case studies as well as hands-on activities in workshops. Young professionals and (PhD) students are specifically encouraged to apply for participation with respect to the conference's aim of being an open, all-including and supportive discussion space.
