

Afterall, issue 41, spring/summer 2016

Helena Vilalta

Afterall is pleased to present issue 41, spring/summer 2016, which looks at how technology shapes bodies. Through the work of Stuart Marshall, Ion Grigorescu, Franciszka and Stefan Thémerson, Holly Herndon and Cooperativa Cráter Invertido, this issue examines how artists have pitched embodied subjectivity against different forms of scientific, economic and political abstraction.

Foreword

Helena Vilalta

Contexts

Fractal Freedoms

Hannah Black

Artists

Ion Grigorescu

Ion Grigorescu: A Political Reinvention of the Socialist Man

Ovidiu Tichindeleanu

Ion Grigorescu: My Vocation Is Classical, Even Bucolic

Anders Kreuger

Contexts

Naisho Wave Manifesto (Secrecy Wave Manifesto)

Terre Thaemlitz

Artists

Stuart Marshall

Intervention: Stuart Marshall

Ian White

Touching What Does Not Yet Exist: Stuart Marshall and the HIV/AIDS Archive

Aimar Arriola

On Stuart Marshall

Alvin Lucier

Events, Works, Exhibitions

Loyal Subjects of the Image: 'Pictures of Sweden 1969'

Kim West

Artists

Holly Herndon

The New Gods in the Machine: Holly Herndon's Vehicularity

Travis Jeppesen

Holly Herndon: A Life Across Bits and Atoms

Lina Dzuverovic

Contexts

Themerson & Themerson

David Morris

Artists

Cooperativa Cráter Invertido

Cooperativa Cráter Invertido: A Binding Latency

Sol Henaro

Contexts

Anarchism, Education and Compromise: Voices from Montevideo

Anne Szefer Karlsen

Contexts

Space/Time: Matter and Motion in On Kawara

Nikos Papastergiadis

Contexts

Littoral Madness

Chris Kraus

Reference:

TOC: Afterall, issue 41, spring/summer 2016. In: ArtHist.net, May 18, 2016 (accessed Jul 7, 2025), <<https://arthist.net/archive/13016>>.