

Iconoclasm and Vandalism (Los Angeles, 1-2 May 18)

GRI Lecture Hall, The Getty Center, Los Angeles CA, May 1–02, 2018

Michael Diers

A symposium at the Getty Research Institute

"Iconoclasm and Vandalism"

Iconoclasm raises contentious questions that transcend cultural and temporal boundaries. It can be understood as vandalism, destruction, or a means of repression, all of which fundamentally put culture at risk. However, iconoclasm can also be a form of protest or a vehicle for creative expression. Iconoclasm is transformative, creating entirely new objects or meanings through alterations to existing artworks. Charged with symbolism, these remains testify to a history of reception, offering clues about the life and afterlife of an object. To a certain extent, all radical changes in cultural production can be described as iconoclastic.

This two-day symposium explores the role of iconoclasm and vandalism as a mode and marker of transformation across a broad range of historical and cultural contexts. This diversity of approaches offers the opportunity to expand and refine our understanding of the concepts of iconoclasm and vandalism, as well as the categories of artistic and cultural heritage against which they are defined. These are crucial issues not only within the field of art history but also in some of the most charged cultural conflicts of our present moment.
