The Summer School will be held from September 15 to 29, 2018. The working day runs from 10:00 am to 7:00 pm (including a lunch break for 1 hour). The program has two modules that focus on documentation, interpretation and restoration of heritage, through the applied work on historical structures in Rogljevo. The school will be organized through two parallel modules for a period of 15 days, with the participants selecting one of the modules and making the final work. Lectures will be held in the morning and they are common to both modules, while in the afternoon, practical work on the field will be organized.

MODULE 1 - DOCUMENTATION AND INTERPRETATION OF BUILT HERITAGE

Participants will also learn about new methodologies and technologies used for this purpose, with a comment on what technologies are available in Serbia and how the selection and scope of survey is performed. Also, participants will be presented with the basic principles of heritage interpretation, and for the purpose of preparing and creating an adequate presentation to various audiences.

MODULE 2 - RECONSTRUCTION OF WINE CELLARS: CONSTRUCTION TECHNIQUES, METHODOLOGY OF RESTORATION AND MAINTENANCE OF HISTORICAL STRUCTURES - EARTH ARCHITECTURE

The participants will work on the restoration of the elements of the architecture of the cellar number 100, which is located within the complex of the Rogljevo wine cellars. Students will work on the preparation and application of mud plaster and restoration of walls and elements of wooden construction. In addition to training for old building techniques, training on historical and modern tools will also be carried out.
