

Terra Foundation for American Art Visiting Professor, University of Oxford

Application deadline: Oct 5, 2018

Rebecca Park, Terra Foundation for American Art

Terra Foundation for American Art Visiting Professor at the University of Oxford

Applications for the 2019–20 Terra Foundation for American Art Visiting Professor at the University of Oxford are due at noon on Friday, October 5.

Building on the University of Oxford's outstanding resources for the advanced study of art history and North American history, politics, literature, and culture, we call your attention to this one-year visiting professorship for the 2019–20 academic year. Candidates should hold a doctorate and have teaching experience.

This position is a unique and exciting opportunity to contribute to long-term research networks, encourage international symposia and conferences, and inspire a new generation of American art academics and curators by further embedding the subject into Oxford's graduate and undergraduate curricula.

The visiting professor will be based in the History of Art Department, part of the History Faculty, and will also hold a visiting fellowship at Worcester College.

To apply and for more information, please visit:
https://www.jobs.ac.uk/job/BME864/terra-foundation-for-american-art-visiting-professor?utm_source=Terra+Foundation+for+American+Art++e-subscriber&utm_campaign=c6ebb54bb7-EMAIL-CAMPAIGN_2018_04_06_COPY_01&utm_medium=email&utm_term=0_38ab270201-c6ebb54bb7-

Reference:

JOB: Terra Foundation for American Art Visiting Professor, University of Oxford. In: ArtHist.net, Sep 9, 2018 (accessed Sep 16, 2026), <<https://arthist.net/archive/18798>>.