

Artistic Exchange between the U.S. and Latin America (Washington, 5-6 Oct 2011)

Smithsonian American Art Museum, Eighth and G Streets NW, Washington, Oct 5-06, 2011

Amelia Goerlitz, Smithsonian American Art Museum

Encuentros: Artistic Exchange between the U.S. and Latin America

October 5-6, 2011

This symposium will examine artistic exchange between Latin America and the United States from the late nineteenth century to the present. Papers will consider how artists and artworks have crossed the border separating the U.S. and Latin America (defined as Mexico, Central and South America, and the Caribbean), creating new artistic dialogues and influencing each other's work in meaningful ways.

Encuentros is the third of five Terra Symposia on American Art in a Global Context, which are supported by a generous grant from the Terra Foundation for American Art.

The event is free and open to the public. To register, please visit www.encuentros.eventbrite.com. The symposium will be available through a simultaneous webcast; an archived version will remain online indefinitely. For the webcast and abstracts of the speakers' talks, please visit AmericanArt.si.edu/research/symposia/2011/.
