

PhD studentships, CRAACE, Masaryk University, Brno

CRAACE, Department of Art History, Masaryk University, Brno, Mar 1, 2021–Dec 31, 2023

Application deadline: Nov 30, 2020

craace.com

Matthew Rampley

The CRAACE (Continuity/Rupture: Art and Architecture in Central Europe 1918-1939) team is inviting applications from those interested in undertaking PhD research at the Department of Art History, Masaryk University, Brno.

Proposals are particularly encouraged from students with an interest in modernism from the first half of the 20th century, focusing on central and east-central Europe. This may be about topics in the history of art, design and architecture, art criticism and theory, as well as the historiography of art. Students will be able to write their research dissertation in English or Czech.

Successful candidates will receive a studentship of CZK 24,000 per month. They will also be eligible for additional support in meeting research costs.

The submission period for applications is: 1 August – 30 November 2020, for enrolment in Spring 2021.

Applicants will need to apply to Masaryk University through the usual application procedure, including a formal research proposal. The details can be found here: <https://www.phil.muni.cz/en/studies/doctoral-degree-study-programme/how-to-apply>

Successful applicants will be expected to register for the programme by 1 March 2021. Funding will be available until the end of 2023.

For an initial informal discussion, please contact: Prof. Matthew Rampley, rampley@muni.cz.

More information on the CRAACE project can be found here: <https://craace.com>

For more information on the Department of Art History see here: <https://arthistory.phil.muni.cz/>

Reference:

STIP: PhD studentships, CRAACE, Masaryk University, Brno. In: ArtHist.net, Sep 26, 2020 (accessed Jul 13, 2025), <<https://arthist.net/archive/23611>>.