Dr. James P. Anno

The American Friends of Capodimonte Postdoctoral Curatorial Fellowship, 2021-2022

The American Friends of Capodimonte (AFC) and the Museum and Royal Park of Capodimonte welcome applicants for a Postdoctoral Curatorial Fellow funded by the AFC for the academic year commencing September 2021. The Fellow will be fully integrated into the Museum's curatorial department and assist Director Sylvain Bellenger and his colleagues in a wide range of projects across the life of the Museum, including exhibitions, publications, interpretation and translations.

The mission of the AFC is to promote and raise awareness in an English-speaking audience of the Museum and Royal Park of Capodimonte, one of Europe's greatest museums. The AFC is proud to be the only 501(c)(3) non-profit organization that funds and places promising young American curators directly into an Italian museum. In addition to curatorial responsibilities, the Fellow will also serve as an English-speaking ambassador from the Museum to visiting members of the AFC, international guests of honor, and members of the international press.

The demands and requirements of the job are, like Naples, not always straightforward and therefore a successful applicant will also need to demonstrate initiative, entrepreneurial skills and the ability to adapt to a variety of situations. Previous Fellows have worked on creating text for English and Italian wall labels for the permanent collection and temporary exhibitions, taken responsibility for curation of the Farnese collection of paintings and drawings, and written a catalogue for an exhibition of Capodimonte's masterpieces that travelled to Seattle and Dallas in 2019-20.

The Fellow will have access to the rich cultural resources of Naples, including museums, opera and music at the Teatro di San Carlo, historic landmarks, and the Biblioteca Nazionale di Napoli, which is the largest Italian library after Florence and Rome. The Fellow will be encouraged to pursue areas of their own expertise within the Museum and may be able to define projects that will further their own research. Previous Fellows have gone on to be offered and to accept curatorial positions in major American museums. The unique access to the Museum and to Naples given to the Fellow during his or her tenure has been an important factor in securing these jobs.

The Fellow will be fully integrated into the inner workings of Capodimonte and is expected to focus on making the Capodimonte's innumerable treasures more widely accessible to an international audience during this exciting period in the museum's illustrious history.

Fellowship Period and Residency

The Fellowship period is from September 1, 2021 to August 31, 2022 during which the Fellow will be expected to reside in Naples and work full-time at the Museo di Capodimonte. The possibility of an extension for a second academic year may be reviewed by the AFC during the initial Fellowship.

The AFC Postdoctoral Curatorial Fellow will be provided with housing or a stipend towards housing for one person only in Naples.

Eligibility

Applicants for the 2021-2022 fellowship must hold a PhD degree in Art History not received before May 30, 2018. Pre-doctoral candidates may apply if the PhD degree will be awarded before commencement of the Fellowship. Applicants must be United States Citizens. Applications will be reviewed by the AFC Board and Director of Capodimonte. The applicant may not hold concurrent fellowships or awards during the fellowship period.

The applicant must also specialize in Early Modern European Art, preferably Italian Renaissance and/or Baroque art. A working knowledge of spoken and written Italian is essential.

Support

The American Friends of Capodimonte Postdoctoral Curatorial Fellowship award is $40,000 per year, in addition to housing or a housing stipend. Upon application to the Board, the Fellow may also be eligible for travel funds for targeted projects.
