ANNOUNCING H-ANNOUNCE
H-NET DISTRIBUTION LIST FOR NEWS AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

Sponsored by H-Net, Humanities & Social Sciences On-line, Michigan State University

H-Announce is a moderated one-way distribution list for H-Net's Announcements Digest (events, upcoming conferences, calls for papers, publications [new journals, journal announcements], programs, workshops, funding, fellowships, new websites of enduring interest to scholars and teachers, news from H-Net and its affiliates, etc.); H-Net's Job Guide Index; Books Reviewed on the Web; and the H-NCC newsletter from the National Coordinating Committee for the Promotion of History. H-NCC is still available by individual subscription as well. The list is a new iteration of the previously internal H-Net list used to distribute announcements to list editors who then select pertinent items for posting to their lists. The list is still available to editors, who may select materials for posting to their subscribers.

H-Announce will not accept announcements submissions directly: all events-related materials posted via H-Announce originate with entries to the H-Net Academic Announcements web site, periodicity to be determined by the volume and availability of entries there: http://www.h-net.msu.edu/announce/

Persons wishing to submit items for H-Announce should visit the Academic Announcements site to prepare their entries for web and email distribution.

The Announcements Digest will be distributed as abbreviated versions of full entries available at the Academic Events web site. To view an entire announcement, click or paste its URL from the announcements digest, or order individual entries by electronic mail; instructions can be found in every announcements digest.

H-Announce is FREE. It is edited by H-Net staff to filter out inappropriate posts, clean up submitted copy, and ensure completeness of entries. Advertisements, direct-marketing or mass-mailing posts, chain letters, electronic petitions, lobbying campaign material, and partisan political announcements will not be posted to H-Announce. Distribution through H-Announce is not equivalent to distribution by any or all H-Net lists; list editors retain the discretion to reject or post announcements sent directly to their lists as well as through H-Announce. Authors should be advised that H-Net's LISTSERV software is programmed to treat multiple mass-mailings to lists as spam and to deny further list access to the sender for 24 hours; authors of announcements intended for wide distribution beyond a few lists therefore are urged to distribute messages to the editors and the public by submitting them at the Academic Events site for mailing through H-Announce, instead of sending announcements to individual lists.

H-Announce material may be freely redistributed with proper attribution to the source, H-Net, and H-Announce. H-Net assumes no liability for the accuracy of entries submitted through the events website; users are cautioned to confirm with the authors of announcements.

To join H-Announce, please send a message from the account where you wish to receive mail, to:
