Art and the Religious Orders: Mendicant Orders

During the last few decades, the artistic patronage of the mendicant orders has been the focus of intense study. While we now understand much more about the ideologies of different mendicant orders as they are expressed through images, much remains to be discussed regarding the historical and contextual use of works, such as altarpieces, cult objects, relics and reliquaries, and fresco cycles, in the dissemination of their messages to their congregations.

Papers concerning the less prominent mendicant orders, such as the smaller mendicant orders emerging before 1215 or those surviving after the Council of Lyon in 1274, are encouraged.

The session is one of three thematic sessions sponsored by the Italian Art Society; the other two sessions are Art and the Religious Orders: Monastic Orders and Art and the Religious Orders: Confraternities.

Please send abstracts for the mendicant session to Anne Derbes, either by email (derbes@hood.edu) or by post (504 Dartmouth Ave., Silver Spring, MD 20910).

Please note that the general deadline for all abstracts is September 15, 2002.
