

U Texas at Austin, DAAD Visiting Professor

University of Texas at Austin
DAAD Visiting Professor

The University of Texas at Austin is looking for highly qualified applicants (with EU citizenship residing for the last two years in Germany) for a German Academic Exchange Service (DAAD) visiting professor position beginning fall 2003. The University is seeking a scholar with Ph.D. and several years of teaching experience who works in some area of transnational studies that includes Germany. Of greatest interest are academics with disciplinary specialization in cultural anthropology or ethnography specializing in migration studies, ethnic studies, and/or the question of German and European identity. Also of interest are scholars from the social and cultural sciences more generally working on the post-war period, especially the German Democratic Republic/ the new Bundesländer, Eastern Europe, or globalization. The host department for this position is the Department of Germanic Studies in the College of Liberal Arts. The initial appointment is for two years, renewable for a total of five years.

Additional information and application forms can be found on the home page of the DAAD: www.daad.de. Application forms may also be requested by e-mail from Schmilewski@daad.de. The complete application is due to the DAAD no later than November 21, 2003.
