PRACTICE AND IDENTITY: WOMEN, SCULPTURE AND PLACE

The Dorich House Annual Conference Series. No. 6

THURSDAY 13TH AND FRIDAY 14TH MAY 2004

Venue: The Lawley Lecture theatre, Kingston University, Kingston upon Thames, London

This two day conference is hosted by the Faculty of Art Design & Music of Kingston University in association with the research department of the Henry Moore Institute. It will investigate how intersections of place, practice and identity can re-configure the complex histories of the work and careers of twentieth-century women sculptors. Papers will look at the growing status of women in art societies in Europe and the US; sculpture education and the gendering of work and technique; travel and the nomadic careers of émigré sculptors; the fabrication of artistic identities and concepts of craft; creativity and interiority, and the construction and critique of 'feminist sculpture'.

Speakers will include Ann Compton, Martha Buskirk, Alexandra Keiser, Liliane Lijn, Fran Lloyd, Sue Malvern, Jan Marsh, Claudine Mitchell, Gill Perry, Helen Potkin, Marjan Sterckx, Hester Westley and Gillian Whiteley. Sessions will be chaired by Penelope Curtis, Fran Lloyd, Joy Sleeman, Andrew Stephenson, Jonathan Vickery and Alison Yarrington. Jemima and Dolly Brown will also be in attendance.

Dorich House, the former home and studio of the sculptor Dora Gordine (1898-1991), was restored by Kingston University in 1994. The house, its collection of Gordine's sculpture and the Imperial Russian art collection will be open free to delegates during the conference.

Tickets £125, Students £50 including lunch/refreshments and evening reception (bursaries available).
