Faculty position in the field of Aboriginal History
Faculty of Arts and Applied Arts

University College of the Fraser Valley
<http://jobs.ac.uk/jobfiles/FC948.html>

Posting: 2004.58

The University College of the Fraser Valley has provided innovative and comprehensive educational programs for over 25 years. As an undergraduate degree granting institution enrolling over 7000 students, UCFV's emphasis is on teaching excellence, while promoting scholarship as an integral part of instruction.

The History Department invites applications for a full-time, permanent faculty position in the field of Aboriginal History, commencing August 1, 2005, subject to funding. UCFV has a long-standing interest in the field of Aboriginal studies and integration with local Aboriginal communities. The successful candidate will have the opportunity to help develop UCFV's Aboriginal Studies Program.

Qualifications:

Candidates should have a Ph.D. in History, First Nations Studies, Indigenous Studies, Educational Studies, or a related discipline, and be prepared to teach lower and upper division courses in Aboriginal and Canadian history. They should have a commitment to excellence in teaching and research, as well as a documented ability to work with Aboriginal students and communities.

Applications should include a curriculum vitae, a statement of teaching philosophy, a summary of current and future research interests, samples of published writing, and documentation of teaching performance. Applicants should send these materials and arrange for three letters of reference to be forwarded under separate cover, quoting the appropriate posting number.

Position Information: Faculty, Full-time, Permanent

Contract Term or Start Date: August 1, 2005

Salary: Appropriate placement on the faculty salary scale

UCFV is committed to the principle of equity in employment.

We invite applications including evidence of appropriate qualifications by January 15, 2005, referring to Posting #2004.58, and directed to:

Part-Time Online Art History Tutors
Department for Continuing Education
University of Oxford

<http://jobs.ac.uk/jobfiles/IV112.html>

The Department for Continuing Education is one of the largest Departments of the University of Oxford with some 15,000 part-time adult students taking courses each year. Since 1996, the Department has been investigating ways of using technology to extend opportunities for studying at Oxford and has developed a number of online courses that are delivered via the Internet. The Department is currently expanding its programme of accredited short online courses and is looking to recruit part-time online art history tutors.

As an online tutor, you will join our panel of more than 200 part-time tutors. Our tutors are a diverse, lively and interesting group who share a knowledge and love of their subject and most importantly a desire to convey their expertise and enthusiasm to students. We are looking to recruit tutors with:

A first degree (or higher), and a minimum of two years postgraduate study in art history.

Detailed and up-to-date knowledge of art history.

Teaching experience. Experience of teaching adults or teaching online would be an advantage.

The ability to motivate, encourage and support a group of up to 25 adult students, with mixed subject knowledge, many of whom will be studying online for the first time.

A willingness to learn the skills of tutoring online.

Excellent interpersonal and written communication skills.

* Good IT skills, including experience of using e-mail and the Internet.

All teaching will be online, so applications are welcome from tutors throughout the UK and beyond. Tutors will be expected to be online for 4 to 8 hours per week during their course and must provide their own computing facilities and Internet access.

To request an application pack to be sent to you via e-mail, please contact Ms Ni Norton by telephone on +44 (0) 1865 270381 or by e-mail at ni.norton@conted.ox.ac.uk.

The closing date for completed applications is 01 November 2004.

It is expected that interviews will be held during the week 15-19 November 2004.
