English Heritage PhD Studentships in Architectural History
Department of History of Art
University of York

Applications are invited for two studentships (fees only) in the field of English Architectural History 1550-1990. The studentships, which will pay the cost of fees at the UK/EU rate (£3010 for the 2004-5 academic year) for a maximum of three years of full-time study, are intended to allow two students to study for PhDs under the supervision of Dr Anthony Geraghty. The awards are open to UK, EU and overseas applicants; overseas candidates will be required to demonstrate, before the offer of an award is confirmed, that they have sufficient funds to cover the balance of the tuition fee, and any candidate will be required to demonstrate that they have sufficient funds to cover living expenses before the offer of an award is confirmed. There is no requirement to reside in York during the period of registration, although students will be expected to attend regularly for supervisions and other purposes. The following areas have been developed with reference to the research priorities of English Heritage and the interests of the Department, and the successful applicants will work on topics which fall within these fields.

The work of a particular architect

History and fabric of a particular building or set of buildings

Architectural drawing

Places of worship

The relationship between historic buildings and historic landscapes

Architecture in an industrial, or technologically innovative context

Applications, including a CV and a research proposal of no more than 1,000 words should be sent to the Head of Department, Professor David Peters Corbett, Department of History of Art, University of York, Heslington, York, YO10 5DD by 1 March 2005. Informal consultation with Dr Geraghty before applying is strongly encouraged. He can be reached by phone on 01904-433429 or via email at ag31@york.ac.uk.
