

Teaching Art History Online (Denton 22-25 May 06)

Kelly Donahue-Wallace

Call for Papers

Teaching Art History Online
College Art Association Annual Meeting
February 22-25, 2006

Art Historians Interested in Pedagogy and Technology, a College Art Association Affiliated Society, invites paper proposals on teaching art history online or through other distributed learning technologies. The session seeks papers that will demonstrate how art history can apply distance learning's best practices and satisfy our discipline's unique demands. AHPT invites papers modeling course or assessment design, pedagogical models, and strategies for addressing copyright and other logistics of online art history. Papers may additionally approach the topic more philosophically and consider the relationship between distance education and the discipline of art history.

Please send a one-page abstract by May 15 to Kelly Donahue-Wallace, AHPT President, at kwallace@unt.edu or P.O. Box 305100, Denton, Texas 76203.
