

2 positions (EMU, North Cyprus)

EMU

Eastern Mediterranean University, North Cyprus
Department of Archaeology and Art History

2 Full-Time Positions

Assistant Professor in Art History and Assistant Professor in Archaeology

Job Description

The Archaeology and Art History Department at Eastern Mediterranean University invites applications for an assistant professorship in Art History and an assistant professorship in Archaeology, to commence Sept. 2006. Though the department would welcome research interests in this region, this is not a requirement and all applicants, in all fields of research and teaching, are encouraged to apply. In addition to contributing survey courses and core courses in the major program the candidate may be teaching in the university's new General Education Program. The successful candidate will have the opportunity to provide upper level courses in his/her area of specialization.

Qualifications

The successful candidate will teach 4 courses per semester depending on his / her research and publishing record. Applicants must be able to work with a student body whose second language is English. A Ph.D. is required and a strong publishing record is preferable.
