Presented in conjunction with the exhibition:

Pietro da Cortona's Saint Martina Refuses to Adore the Idols: A Painting in Context

October 14, 2006 - January 21, 2007

The exhibition examines a masterpiece from the collection of the

Princeton University Art Museum in the context of Cortona's oeuvre, his working methods, and his personal piety. The artist had a special devotion to Saint Martina, an early Christian virgin and martyr saint whose relics he discovered during the rebuilding of the church of S. Martina, which had been renamed SS. Luca e Martina when it was given to the artist's Academy of Saint Luke in 1588. The guest curator of the exhibition, Pietro da Cortona specialist Jörg Martin Merz, has assembled twenty works, including paintings, sculpture, drawings, prints, and books from American collections, including the Kimbell Art Museum, Fort Worth; the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C.; the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York; the Art Institute of Chicago; and private collections. Together the works contribute to an understanding of the iconography and historical context of the Princeton painting.
