

Visual Culture - Dissertation Proposal Development Fellowship (DPDF)

Peter Sahlins

Visual Culture (<http://programs.ssrc.org/dpdf/visual>) is one of the five fields in 2007 that make up the Dissertation Proposal Development Fellowship (DPDF), a new program organized by the Social Science Research Council with funds from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation (<http://programs.ssrc.org/dpdf>).

Applications are now open for early stage graduate students to join a group of 12 students led by Professors Anne Higonnet of Columbia University and Vanessa R. Schwartz of the University of Southern California during summer 2007. These research directors run two workshops, in May and September, that help graduate fellows develop their ideas into fundable dissertations amenable to timely completion. Graduate fellows may apply for up to $5000 in summer research money. To apply before March 1st, 2007, please visit the SSRC's online application portal at <http://soap.ssrc.org/>.

Peter Sahlins
Director of Academic Programs
Social Science Research Council
810 Seventh Avenue, 31st floor
New York, NY 10019

P: 212-377-2700
F: 212-377-2727
E: dpdf@ssrc.org

Reference:

ANN: Visual Culture - Dissertation Proposal Development Fellowship (DPDF). In: ArtHist.net, Jan 25, 2007 (accessed Jun 15, 2026), <<https://arthist.net/archive/28907>>.