

Influence of war on 20th Century Art

Query on the influence of war on twentieth-century art

I am researching a possible exhibition on the influence of war on twentieth-century art. I am interested in knowing about any current graduate or research work that is going on that discusses the subject as it relates to specific countries and geographical areas and that introduces new approaches to the subject. I am also interested in ensuring that I am up-to-date with all the recently published literature as well. I have built up files in some areas but I am sure there is work going on or that has gone on that I am unaware of, which could make a fruitful contribution.
