

Western Art History in China (Fulbright)

David Adams

Luce Fulbright Fellowship - Western Art History in China

[application deadline Aug 1, 2007]

Western Art History in China - The Fulbright-Luce Scholar lecturing grants provide a wonderful opportunity for American specialists in art history to learn first-hand about the exciting contemporary art scene all over China. At the same time, recipients of these grants are helping to build the field of Western art history in Chinese universities.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens, have a Ph.D. in art history, and have at least three years of university teaching experience in the field.

Specializations of interest include: Graeco-Roman, Renaissance, Baroque, Impressionism, and modern and contemporary American. In addition to teaching undergraduate and graduate survey courses in Western art history and courses in their area of specialization, grantees will assist their host institutions in developing a Western art history curriculum and program. Teaching is in English.

Grants are for five to ten months and start in late August for academic year grants and late August or mid-February for five-month grants.

Additional information and application materials are available at www.cies.org. The application deadline for 2008-09 grants is August 1, 2007. If you meet the eligibility requirements and have specific questions, contact David Adams, dadams@cies.iie.org or 202-686-4021.

David Adams

Council for the International Exchange of Scholars

dadams@cies.iie.org

202-686-4021.

Email: dadams@cies.iie.org

Visit the website at <http://www.cies.org>

Reference:

STIP: Western Art History in China (Fulbright). In: ArtHist.net, Jun 13, 2007 (accessed Sep 16, 2025), <<https://arthist.net/archive/29402>>.