

The Politics of Display (Chicago, 3 May 08)

David Spatz

"The Politics of Display"

Symposium in Honor of Neil Harris, Preston and Sterling Morton Professor of History and Art History, The University of Chicago

Saturday, May 3, 2008

The symposium will explore aspects of American culture central to Professor Harris's own scholarly interests. The symposium will be free but attendees must preregister.

Speakers will include Daniel Bluestone, University of Virginia; Michele H. Bogart, Stony Brook University; Annie Cohen-Solal, École des Hautes Études en Sciences Sociales; Hanna Holborn Gray, University of Chicago; Thomas Hines, University of California, Los Angeles; Barbara Kirshenblatt-Gimblett, New York University; T. Jackson Lears, Rutgers University; Sally M. Promey, Yale University; and Nicholas Yablon, University of Iowa.

For further information, please contact harrissymposium@listhost.uchicago.edu.

Reference:

CONF: The Politics of Display (Chicago, 3 May 08). In: ArtHist.net, Oct 14, 2007 (accessed Oct 27, 2025), <<https://arthist.net/archive/29770>>.