

Summer Teachers Institute in Technical Art History (23-27 July; New Haven, CT)

Yale University Art Gallery, Jul 23-27, 2012

Deadline: Apr 16, 2012

Sarah Barack

Following the success of the inaugural program, we are pleased to announce the second Summer Teachers Institute in Technical Art History (STITAH), to be held at Yale University, New Haven, CT, July 23-27, 2012. Made possible through the generous support of the Samuel H. Kress Foundation, this course offers a unique opportunity for professional development for art history faculty, providing a broad introduction to technical art history through object examination, technical studies, analytical equipment demonstrations, gallery tours, hands-on practical sessions, and more.

Please visit our website at www.stitah2012.sites.yale.edu for more information, including how to apply. Please note that applications are due by April 16, 2012.

Reference:

ANN: Summer Teachers Institute in Technical Art History (23-27 July; New Haven, CT). In: ArtHist.net, Apr 3, 2012 (accessed Apr 7, 2026), <<https://arthist.net/archive/2989>>.