

nonsite.org 5: Agency and Experience

Charles Palermo

The board of nonsite.org announces the publication of issue 5: Agency and Experience (See table of contents, below)

In this issue Michael Fried, Ruth Leys, and Robert Pippin look at aspects of the relation between our agency—our actions, or emotions, our character—and our experience—of the world, of ourselves, of each other.

Two special features consider writing on cubism—Kevin Chua on Christopher Green and Lisa Florman on Clement Greenberg, Rosalind Krauss, Yve-Alain Bois, and T.J. Clark.

Thierry de Duve introduces the theme of nonsite.org's next issue—Intention and Interpretation—by raising an unavoidable question: what court is qualified to judge what line of interpretation to adopt?

Plus a review of The Affect Theory Reader and new poetry by Samuel Amadon and Maureen McLane.

issue #5 (Spring 2012)

Table of Contents

Articles

“Both of Us Disgusted in My Insula”: Mirror Neuron Theory and Emotional Empathy

By Ruth Leys, Johns Hopkins University

Passive and Active Skepticism in Nicholas Ray's In a Lonely Place

By Robert Pippin, University of Chicago

Sala with Schiller: World, Form, and Play in Mixed Behavior

By Michael Fried, Johns Hopkins University

Features

Intentionality and Art Historical Methodology: A Case Study

By Thierry de Duve, l'Université Lille

Different Facets of Analytic Cubism

By Lisa Florman, The Ohio State University

Responses

Charles Altieri on Jami Bartlett, Jennifer Ashton, and John Gibson

ArtHist.net

By Charles Altieri, UC Berkeley

Robert Pippin on Oren Izenberg and Paul Grimstad

By Robert Pippin, University of Chicago

Reviews

Picasso and the Vital Order

By Kevin Chua, Texas Tech University

The Aesthetic Politics of Affect

By Todd Cronan, Emory University

Reference:

TOC: nonsite.org 5: Agency and Experience. In: ArtHist.net, Apr 6, 2012 (accessed Apr 7, 2026), <<https://arthist.net/archive/2991>>.