Deadline: 31th March 2008

The seventh World Art symposium will focus on the relationship between narratives and the visual and aims to explore narrative as an artistic and human strategy.

The papers may cover any genre, geographical area or medium. Topics may be drawn from but are not restricted to: the visual arts, film, popular culture, children's culture, visual communication, diagrammatical use of narratives, theory or criticism, and from interdisciplinary fields.

The symposium is meant to be a meeting place for those who are interested in or researching narratives in diverse fields. It is open to all but will be of particular interest to postgraduates and advanced undergraduates.

Proposals for twenty-minute papers are invited.
