Post-Doctoral Research Fellowships

The Henry Moore Foundation will offer a small number of one-year post-doctoral fellowships in the field of sculpture studies at a British university from the autumn of 2008, tenable for one year in the first instance, with the possibility to apply for a second year. The awards are primarily to help scholars recently awarded PhDs to prepare a substantial publication. Applications must show that they have an affiliation with a university department.

One fellowship will be tenable at the University of Leeds, in the School of Fine Art, History of Art and Cultural Studies, in association with the Henry Moore Institute. Applicants for this fellowship should indicate how their topic would contribute to the research work of the School and that of the Henry Moore Institute, as the fellow will act in a liaising role between these institutions. Candidates may apply specifically for the University of Leeds award, or indicate on their application if they wish additionally to be considered for this post.
