On May, 13th 2008 within a few hours the van den Broek and Bakema (1970) building of the Faculty of Architecture of Delft University of Technology burnt completely down and is at present being demolished.

IHAAU, the Institute of History of Art, Architecture and Urbanism, lost more than 600 running metres of books (about 5.000 volumes), research archives, journals, its collection of historical photographs as well as about 40.000 slides.

We would be deeply grateful, if you could see possibilities of lending a helping hand in the reconstruction of IHAAU by donating books and journals or even financial means to reestablish one of the largest and oldest research centres of the history of art, architecture and town planning in the Netherlands as well as a teaching centre for thousands of students of architecture annually.

Books should be directed to:

Your support can equally aid in the reconstruction of teaching and research in the field of History of Art, Architecture and Urbanism as well as boost the morale of staff and students still under the shock of this incomprehensible loss.
