Volume LXXI is a special issue of the Journal, celebrating the 75th anniversary of the Courtauld Institute of Art. The volume was edited at the Courtauld Institute by Professor Paul Crossley and Professor John Lowden and the articles were all written by past or present staff and present students of the Courtauld. The association of the Warburg and Courtauld Institutes through the Journal dates from 1939 (vol. III). First launched as the Journal of the Warburg Institute in 1937, the series is still published by the Warburg Institute.
