

Newberry Library Fellowships in the Humanities (2010-2011)

Leslie Kan

FELLOWSHIPS IN THE HUMANITIES 2010-2011

The Newberry's fellowships support humanities research in our collections. Our collections are wide-ranging, rich, and sometimes a little eccentric. If you study the humanities, chances are good we have something for you. We promise you remarkable collections; a lively interdisciplinary community of researchers; individual consultations on your research with staff curators, librarians, and scholars; and an array of scholarly and public programs.

LONG-TERM FELLOWSHIPS

These awards support research and writing by scholars with a doctorate. Their purpose is to help fellows develop or complete larger-scale studies that draw on our collections, and to foster intellectual exchange among fellows and the Library community. Fellowship terms range from six to eleven months with stipends of up to $50,400.

Long-term applications are due January 11, 2010

Major long-term fellowship funding is provided by the National Endowment for the Humanities, The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, and Dr. Audrey Lumsden-Kouvel.

SHORT-TERM FELLOWSHIPS

Ph.D. candidates and scholars with a doctorate are eligible for short-term travel-to-collections fellowships. Their purpose is to help researchers study specific materials at the Newberry that are not readily available to them elsewhere. Short-term fellowships are usually awarded for a period of one month. Most are restricted to scholars who live and work outside the Chicago area. Stipends are $1600 per month.

NEW: We invite short-term fellowship applications from teams of two or three scholars who plan to collaborate intensively on a single, substantive project. The individual scholars on a team awarded a fellowship will each receive a full stipend of $1600 per month. Teams should submit a single application, including cover sheets and CVs from each member.

Short-term applications are due March 1, 2010.

We also offer exchange fellowships with British, French and German institutions, a fellowship for American Indian women pursuing any post-graduate education, and a fellowship for published independent scholars.

For more information or to download application materials, visit our website at: <http://www.newberry.org/research/felshp/fellowshome.html>

Or contact:

Research and Education
The Newberry Library
60 West Walton Street
Chicago, IL 60610

312.255.3666

research@newberry.org

Reference:

STIP: Newberry Library Fellowships in the Humanities (2010-2011). In: ArtHist.net, Oct 19, 2009 (accessed Jun 17, 2026), <<https://arthist.net/archive/31953>>.