Director

Warburg Institute

University of London - School of Advanced Study

The Warburg Institute occupies a unique place in European intellectual life. It is dedicated to the interdisciplinary study of the classical tradition, exploring the abiding influence of the ancient world on the art, thought, literature, religion and social customs of Europe and the Near East. It comprises a Library, a Photographic Collection and an Archive, and offers a programme of public lectures, seminars and colloquia, distinguished in-house research and an innovative programme of postgraduate teaching. It is a member-Institute of the University of London's School of Advanced Study.

Applications for the post of Director are invited from scholars of international standing in areas of study relevant to the Institute. Alongside an excellent record of research and publications, the Director will bring vision along with the ability to provide strong academic and organisational leadership and will develop the Institute's national role by sustaining and forging productive links with a national and international community of scholars. It is expected that where appropriate a suitably qualified candidate will be appointed to the chair of the History of the Classical Tradition.

The appointee will be accountable to the Dean of the School and will be expected to contribute to the management and governance of the School and to the development of its policies and practices.

For details on how to apply, please visit www.london.ac.uk/104.html, email Ulrecruit@lon.ac.uk or call 020 7862 8100 (24 hour), quoting reference 011/10.

Informal enquiries should be directed to the Acting Dean of the School Professor Mike Edwards mike.edwards@sas.ac.uk or to Kim Frost, Director of Human Resources, Kim.Frost@lon.ac.uk or 0207 862 8026.

The closing date for receipt of completed applications is 12 noon on 22 March 2010. Interviews are scheduled to take place on Thursday 3 June 2010.
