

Lecturer in Art History 1450-1800 (Manchester)

University of Manchester, Sep 01, 2012

Application deadline: Jun 20, 2012

David Lomas

Lecturer in Art History 1450 to 1800

Art History & Visual Studies

University of Manchester

Closing date : 20/06/2012

Reference : HUM-01188

Salary : £32,801 to £45,486

Employment type : Permanent

Applications are invited for a lectureship in Art History in the period 1450 to 1800. A specialism in any area of European art, or in the inter-relationships between European and non-European art, eg. Latin American, Indian, or East Asian art, will be considered. The ability to teach widely about artists and art movements central to the art historical understanding of this period would be an asset. You should have a PhD, research and publications of high quality, and be committed to teaching at all levels. The post is available from 1 September 2012.

Informal inquiries can be made to the Head of Subject, Professor David Lomas (david.c.lomas@manchester.ac.uk).

Further particulars of this post and instructions about how to apply can be obtained at:

www.jobtrain.co.uk/universityofmanchester/vacancies.aspx

Reference:

JOB: Lecturer in Art History 1450-1800 (Manchester). In: ArtHist.net, May 22, 2012 (accessed Apr 6, 2026), <<https://arthist.net/archive/3315>>.