The [After]Lives of Objects: Transposition in the Material World

The University of Virginia's graduate symposium, The [After]Lives of Objects: Transposition in the Material World is a couple weeks away! The papers presented at the symposium explore how transposition has materialized throughout history, examining questions including: How are objects changed when they are activated as mediums of encounter? In what ways do makers and users negotiate their positionality between and within societies through objects? What is at stake when materials, artistic techniques, and/or technologies originating from one region are duplicated outside of that region?

The symposium will take place via Zoom on March 18–19. Join us on Thursday, March 18 at 6:00 PM for our keynote lecture by Dr. Kristel Smentek and on Friday, March 19 beginning at 9:30 AM for a day of presentations by an international panel of graduate students. Please visit the conference website at: <https://art.as.virginia.edu/graduate-symposium> to register for the event!
