Columbia University

Application deadline: Nov 15, 2021

Department of Art History and Archeology, Columbia University

Jane and Leopold Swergold Assistant Professor, Chinese Art History

The Department of Art History and Archaeology at Columbia University invites applications for the position of Jane and Leopold Swergold Assistant Professor, tenure track, in the field of Chinese art history, to begin July 1, 2022. The committee especially welcomes applications from candidates whose research falls within the two millennia from the Han through Qing dynasty, and who demonstrate interests in interregional perspectives, particularly within East Asia. The department seeks candidates who, through their research, teaching, and / or service, will contribute to the excellence and diversity of the academic community and to sustaining and building a robust curriculum of undergraduate survey courses in the art of East Asia, graduate seminars, and Ph.D. advising.

The Ph.D. must be completed and deposited by June 30, 2022.

Review will begin November 15, 2021.

All applications must be made through Columbia University's Academic Search and Recruiting (ASR) system. Applicants should upload the following required materials: cover letter, curriculum vitae, one-page statement on the candidate's contributions to diversity, and one published article or article-length writing sample. Applicants should also enter the information and arrange for three letters of reference to be sent on their behalf.
