ArtHist.net

Venice Summer School in Digital and Public Humanities (Venice, 11–15 Jul 22)

Venice, Jul 11–15, 2022
Deadline: Apr 30, 2022

Dr. Barbara Tramelli

The VeDPH Summer School aims at providing advanced and in-depth training to students and scholars in theories, technologies and methods applied to historical monuments, artifacts and texts in the interdisciplinary field of Digital and Public Humanities, focussing on cultural, archaeological, historical, literary, and artistic materials from Venetian sites and cultural heritage institutions. The school will give to the participants the opportunity to engage in debates about digital cultural heritage and public humanities while enhancing their competences and skills in digitising materials and sources and in modelling, analysing and visualising multimedia humanities data.

The VeDPH summer school will take place in historical sites and cultural venues across Venice and its surroundings. Each day will be dedicated to a specific academic field: history, art history, textual scholarship and archaeology. Teaching formats will include lectures, hands-on workshops, guided tours and experimental performances. Units will be planned and delivered by local experts and invited specialists. All classes will be taught in English.

Important information and deadlines for applicants

Eligibility
Everyone interested in Digital and Public Humanities can apply (Essential Criteria University MA or equivalent)
Availability of places 25 participants maximum.

Participation fees
The Summer School is free of charge.
Accommodation (five days) in Venice will be covered for those participants considered "off-site": those who have the place of residence over 80km from the Department of Humanities or if it takes over 80 minutes to reach the Department of Humanities. Half board (lunch) in Venice will be provided to all participants.

Requirements, applications and admission
Last date to apply April 30, 2022 (11.55 PM CET).
The application must be submitted via Google Form "Admission Application Form – VeSSDPH 2022" (see below)

The following documents must be attached to the application:

Application Form

Motivation letter

CV, including qualifications, experiences, skills and knowledge in the field

Copy of valid ID or passport

Deadline for application: 30/04/2022 (11.55 PM CET)

Admission and scholarship final rankings information for registration: 15/05/2022

Deadline for acceptance and registration: 31/05/2022

For further details see https://www.unive.it/pag/39288/

For further information write to didattica.dsu@unive.it.

Reference:

ANN: Venice Summer School in Digital and Public Humanities (Venice, 11-15 Jul 22). In: ArtHist.net, Apr 16, 2022 (accessed Jul 13, 2025), <https://arthist.net/archive/36410>.