Immortal Egypt. The Afterlife of Egypt in Early Modern Visual Arts.

These study days will question the complex interaction between continuity, discontinuity, survival and rebirth by employing the epistemological tools of art history, visual anthropology and the history of ideas in order to reflect on the heritage, as well as on the creative processes that have ensured the posterity of a strange, complex, changing, close and distant Antiquity.

The workshop proposes a novel approach that lies at the crossroads between Egyptology and Egyptomania, a term intended in the global sense of interest in Egypt. Thus, archaeologists and art historians will work on interdependent themes in order to identify the metamorphoses and anamorphoses of the aegyptiaca by considering the different media and modalities of artistic expression, from the small to the large scale.

Our study days are conceived as a triptych and take place in three prestigious institutions: the Warburg Institute (3-4 March), the Bibliotheca Hertziana (13-14 April), the Université Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne/INHA (1-2 June).

Luisa Capodieci is Associated Professor in Early Modern Art History at the University Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne. She has written many essays on symbolic images in France and Italy during the 16th century and the book Medicæa Medæa. Art, astres et pouvoir à la cour de Catherine de Médicis (2011). Her book L'œil d'Horus. Visions de l'Égypte dans l'art profane de la Renaissance entre France et Italie (in press), is the result of the researches she carried thanks to the Warburg Institute's Frances Yates Long Term Fellowship.

Laurent Bricault, Ph.D. (Paris-Sorbonne 1994), is Professor of Roman History at Université Toulouse Jean-Jaurès and senior member of the Institut Universitaire de France. Well known in the domain of Isis and Mithraic studies, he is the author of numerous books and articles and has recently published Isis Pelagia: Images, Names and Cults of a Goddess of the Seas (Leiden, 2020) and Les cultes de Mithra dans l'empire romain (Toulouse 2021).
