SAHGB Annual Conference 2023: "Constructing Coloniality: British Imperialism and the Built Environment".

As previously announced, we are delighted to be hosting the upcoming three-day conference on Constructing Coloniality: British Imperialism and the Built Environment. The event will take place at the Bartlett School of Architecture in central London, run by The Society of Architectural Historians of Great Britain (SAHGB) in collaboration with UCL and the London School of Architecture.

We will kick off on Thursday May 11th 2023 at 18.00 with a drinks reception in the foyer of the Bartlett School of Architecture followed by Professor Nnamdi Elleh's pre-conference keynote lecture titled Decolonizing Decolonisation: Ideological Continuity and Discontinuity in Colonial and Postcolonial Imaginations of Modernity.

This will be followed on Friday and Saturday, May 12th and May 13th 2023, by two full days of conference papers focusing on the coloniality of architecture and built heritage in relation to the British Empire. They will cover the period from the early years of colonial expansion and the escalation of the slave trade in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, through to the physical and political force wielded in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries, and the development of racial capitalism, to the subsequent and ongoing struggles for independence, freedom and justice.

The topics cover:

- Session 1: The Architectural Grasp
- Session 2: Militarised Spaces of Empire
- Session 3: Networks of Trade and Industry
- Session 4: Objectives of Empire
- Session 5: Infrastructures of Life and Land
- Session 6: Postcolonialism and its Heritage

Our series of optional walking tours around London will take place on Sunday May 14th 2023, when the role of architecture in constructing coloniality can be explored first-hand.
