

art thinking doing art (Berlin, 23–24 Jun 23)

Medienhaus der UdK, Berlin, Jun 23–24, 2023

Sandra Neugärtner, Leuphana Universität Lüneburg

[English version below]

Die Tagung "art thinking doing art. Artistic Practices in Educational Contexts from 1900 to Today" eröffnet eine historische wie auch zeitgenössische Untersuchung der Wechselbeziehungen zwischen Kunsterziehung, Kunstproduktion und ideologischen Kontexten. Mit Beiträgen von Wissenschaftlern aus zwölf verschiedenen Ländern nimmt dieses Projekt eine einzigartig breite Perspektive auf die Frage der Kunsterziehung ein, indem es den Prozess der "knowledgization" auch epistemologisch in breiteren Diskussionen über die (Inter-)Materialität, (Gegen-)Institutionalität und (Trans-)Disziplinarität künstlerischer Praktiken verortet und anhand empirischer Fallstudien deren historische Dimension in verschiedenen geopolitischen Kontexten für den Zeitraum von ca. 1900 bis heute untersucht.

Über die gesamte Veranstaltung hinweg sind künstlerische Perspektiven beteiligt. Sie entfalten einen Interventionsraum, dessen grundlegendes Merkmal darin besteht, explorativ zu sein. Die Intervening Lecture des Raqs Media Collectives, die unauffällig in die wissenschaftliche Vortragsserie integriert ist, und die ständige Präsenz des Kollektivs in Workshops während der Veranstaltung wirken einer monoperspektivischen Ausrichtung der Diskussionen von vornherein entgegen.

Die Veranstaltung ist öffentlich, eine Registrierung wird empfohlen (registration@art-thinking-doing-art.com; <https://art-thinking-doing-art.com/register-here>). Die Sprache ist Englisch.

Konzeption, Planung, Organisation: Sandra Neugärtner, Akademische Rätin am Lehrstuhl für Kunstgeschichte am Institut für Philosophie und Kunsthistorische Wissenschaft, Leuphana Universität Lüneburg
Unterstützung: Anna Brus, Wissenschaftliche Mitarbeiterin am Kunsthistorischen Institut der Universität zu Köln

Das Projekt wird gefördert durch den Sonderforschungsbereich 1512 "Intervenierende Künste" (DFG), die Leuphana Universität Lüneburg, die Universität der Künste Berlin und die Universität zu Köln.

English version:

The conference "art thinking doing art. Artistic Practices in Educational Contexts from 1900 to Today" opens a historical as well as contemporary investigation of the interrelationships between art education, art production and ideological contexts. With contributions from scholars from twelve different countries, this project takes a uniquely broad perspective on the question of art education by also epistemologically situating the process of "knowledgization" in broader discussions of the (inter-)materiality, (counter-)institutionality, and (trans-)disciplinarity of artistic practices, and by using empirical case studies to examine their historical dimensions in different geopolitical contexts for the period from about 1900 to the present.

Artistic perspectives are involved throughout the event. They unfold an intervening space whose fundamental characteristic is to be exploratory. The Raqs Media Collective's Intervening Lecture, unobtrusively integrated into the academic lecture series, and the collective's constant presence in workshops throughout the event counteract a monoperspectival orientation of the discussions from the outset.

The event is open to the public, registration is recommended (registration@art-thinking-doing-art.com; <https://art-thinking-doing-art.com/register-here>). The language is English.

The project was conceived, planned and organized by Sandra Neugärtner, Assistant Professor, Institute of Philosophy and Art History, Leuphana University Lüneburg

The implementation is supported by Anna Brus, Research Associate, Art History Institute of the University of Cologne.

The project is funded by the Collaborative Research Center 1512 "Intervening Arts" (DFG), Leuphana University Lüneburg, Berlin University of the Arts and the University of Cologne.
