Fruitful Failure: Historical Perspectives, Technological Innovations, Resilience, and Ethical Implications.

Fruitful Failure seeks to explore the constructive potential of failure within the realms of literature, art history, archaeology and the digital humanities. Rather than viewing failure solely as a negative outcome, this conference will investigate how failure has often been a catalyst for innovation, resilience, and ethical transformation. By examining various dimensions of failure, this interdisciplinary forum aims to redefine the concept across several academic fields. The conference will foster cross-disciplinary dialogue, drawing on case studies and recent methodological developments to emphasize the role of failure in stimulating breakthroughs and challenging conventional narratives.
