Registration deadline: Sep 25, 2025

Prof. Dr. Mona Schieren, Hochschule für Künste Bremen

To accompany the first comprehensive retrospective of Lygia Clark (1920–1988) in Germany (Neue Nationalgalerie), this symposium invites interdisciplinary contributions that explore Clark's multifaceted practice and its resonance across art history, theory, pedagogy, psychiatry and contemporary artistic production.

Lygia Clark's approach – understanding art as a participatory, sensorial, sometimes even healing experience – establishes her as one of the most internationally groundbreaking and important artists of the second half of the 20th century. Her work demonstrates close links to European modernism, particularly concrete and constructivist art, while also marking her emancipation from these movements. Clark has had a lasting influence on subsequent generations through her art and remains a central point of reference for contemporary artists today. The extraordinary significance of her oeuvre lies in her ability to transcend the dominance of the visual in art, expanding the act of viewing to include other sensory perceptions such as hearing, feeling, smelling and touching. In doing so, her works invite passive viewers into becoming active participants in a subjective art experience – an approach that remains highly relevant, as direct interaction with works of art is still largely uncommon in museums today.

Despite her impact as a key figure in participatory and sensorial art, Clark remains largely unknown to the general public in Germany. This symposium aims to intensify scholarly attention on her oeuvre, further situate her work within global modernisms, and critically engage with its enduring relevance.
