michela filzi - On Parasiting

Kick-off Event der Veranstaltungsreihe: On Parasiting.

On Parasiting is an international art project that employs parasitic tactics as a form of resistance. Starting in July, six artists will go undercover to infiltrate companies such as Amazon and the gig economy in order to expose power dynamics. The kick-off "Parasite School" combines a symposium, workshop, and rehearsal space to develop strategies for infiltration. The goal is to destabilize hegemonic structures through complicity. Contributions come from Pilvi Takala and peng!, among others.

The Parasite School marks the opening week of On Parasiting, an international artistic project that tests parasitic tactics as a contemporary methodology of resistant artistic practices. It responds by deliberately operating within existing systems and experimenting from inside them: through performative adaptation and precise acts of irritation, out of the position of complicity. The parasite carves out the fragility of its host system and searches for spots of resistant artistic practice.

The opening day invites artists and all participants to question the boundaries between theory and practice, across professional disciplines, and within research-driven inquiry and tactics. At the same time, it opens a field of exchange and interrogation on parasite art.

The contributions, combined with an artistic performance, are by Anna Watkins Fisher, Tobias Ginsburg, Jakob Margit Wirth and Post Brothers.
