

Ephemeral Encounters (Online, 12–13 Jun 26)

Online, Jun 12–13, 2026

Jenna Allsopp

DHS Student Conference – EPHEMERAL ENCOUNTERS.

The word ephemeral is used to refer to things or states that only last for a short time. In times of upheaval and uncertainty, the ephemeral nature of design and design history is made apparent. Objects can be ephemeral in their nature; creators, users, and historians share fleeting encounters with materials, objects, and spaces. Wars, natural disasters, developments in technology can precipitate the disappearance of objects, sites, cultures and histories. Design historians must grapple with these ephemeralities. This conference explores ideas of ephemera, ephemerality and ephemeral encounters across the broad spectrum of design history.
