Session Call for Papers

Transcending Time and Space: Medieval Gothic Architecture and its Revivals

This session welcomes all papers discussing current research on any aspect of medieval Gothic and Gothic Revival architectural history. This session is intended to provide a broad spectrum of academic approaches to medieval and revivalist architectural history, emphasizing recent developments in the scholarly research of UAAC/AAUC members. As such, the overall session will encompass a unique cross-section of research on Gothic architecture, from its 12th century inception to its continued developments and adaptations into the 21st century. Speakers may discuss but are not limited to the following broad themes in order to frame the overall session: patronage, geographical networks, chronological reassessments, iconography/iconology, interdisciplinary relationships between architectural history and other disciplines.

Session Chair: Candice Bogdanski, PhD Candidate

Affiliation: York University, Toronto
