

Research Seminars "Photographic Cultures and Heritage" (Online, 8 Oct–3 Dec 26)

Photographic History Research Centre (PHRC) / Online

Prof Gil Pasternak

The Photographic History Research Centre (PHRC) at De Montfort University Leicester (UK) is delighted to announce the second year of its Research Seminars in Photographic Cultures and Heritage, a free-to-attend online series of talks and discussions exploring photography's entanglements with politics, technology, culture, and heritage.

Building on the first year of the series, the seminars bring together researchers, practitioners, and professionals from across the cultural and heritage sectors to explore diverse approaches to photography and photographic practices.

The series aims to open up new perspectives on how photography shapes, and is shaped by, cultural heritage across time and place, while creating space for interdisciplinary exchange and discussion.
