OBJECT LESSONS: FIFTEEN YEARS OF OBJECT: GRADUATE RESEARCH AND REVIEWS IN THE

HISTORY OF ART AND VISUAL CULTURE

21-22 June 2013, University College London

OBJECT was established by research students in History of Art at UCL in 1998 and continues to be produced entirely by students in the Department. Since its founding, editors of and contributors to the journal have moved on to important positions in the academy and other cultural institutions, in the UK and abroad. On the occasion of its fifteenth issue, OBJECT has invited some distinguished former contributors to present current research and to reflect upon their experiences since their involvement with the journal. Preparations to move the journal online also offer the opportunity to discuss with previous authors developments in the discipline's institutional and pedagogical landscape and changing conditions of publication. As OBJECT nears the end of its second decade, its own history allows for an interrogation of the field.
