Uncube Magazine no. 26: Architecture Education

Franziska Stein

Uncube Magazine – online magazine for architecture and beyond
http://www.uncubemagazine.com
No. 26: School's Out!

In the wake of the Bologna Process, most European architecture schools are struggling to conform with the standardised educational models now required – not to mention rising costs, outdated bureaucracies and a rapidly changing profession. Today, most architecture graduates won't even become architects. Can architecture education catch up with reality?

This issue of uncube tackles the complicated status quo, with a focus on the European continent but an eye on the rest of the world. After talking to experts and experimenters across the board, there is only one thing everyone can agree: The system needs a serious overhaul.

From our Table of Contents:

INTERVIEWs
No More Masters – Interview with architect Odile Decq
License to Think – Interview with Eugenie deLariviere

FOCUS
Radical Pedagogies – Texts by Federica Vannucchi, Evangelos Kotsioris, Beatriz Colomina, Anna-Maria Meister and Ignacio Gonzalez Galan

ESSAYs
Andreas Ruby: Buildings to Learn In, Buildings to Learn From. Visiting two young architecture schools in Nantes and Tirana
Ethel Baraona Pohl: Deschooling Society. Learning in the networked era

CASE STUDIES
Education as Practice – Rural Studio, School of Architecture Auburn, Alabama

Education as Network – Aedes Network Campus, Berlin

Education as Anarchy – Dirty Art Department, Amsterdam

Education as Accident – SCI-Arc, Los Angeles

Education as Curation – AA Night School, London

Education as Branding – Strelka Institute, Moscow

Education as Open Platform – The Public School for Architecture, Brussels

BOOKMARKED
Eugene Asse (MARCH, Moskow Architecture School) recommending his favourite books on architecture

Go directly to our new issue here:
http://www.uncubemagazine.com/magazine

uncube is a digital magazine for architecture and beyond.
Against the constant humming of online news feeds, uncube offers a space to breathe. Berlin-based with an international perspective, we care about authorship, curated content, and looking good – with thoughtfully considered and beautifully designed graphics and spreads. uncube combines the ease of the internet with the sensibility of print: both reflexive to the current yet reflective of the longer view – and all delivered with a lightness of touch.

Do not miss an issue. Sign up to our newletter now:
http://www.uncubemagazine.com/subscribe

Reference:

TOC: Uncube Magazine no. 26: Architecture Education. In: ArtHist.net, Oct 11, 2014 (accessed Nov 2, 2026), <https://arthist.net/archive/8564>.