

InVisible Culture, Issue 24: Vulnerability

Deadline: Mar 20, 2015

Victoria Gao, University of Rochester

InVisible Culture

"Vulnerability" - Issue 24

For its twenty-fourth issue, InVisible Culture: An Electronic Journal for Visual Culture invites scholarly articles and creative works that explore the concept of vulnerability.

Almost two weeks after Thomas Eric Duncan's plane landed in Dallas from Liberia in late September, the Centers for Disease Control announced the first case of Ebola in the United States. News feeds immediately jumped at the report, the Dow Jones plunged 266 points and petitions to ban flights from Ebola-stricken countries have since been circulating across social media platforms. From ISIS to the crisis in Ukraine to employment security, the media's pronouncement of threats posed by vulnerabilities (and certain invisibilities) are ubiquitous. It is worth considering, however, what the stakes are in maintaining such rhetoric, and whether it is possible to imagine alternatives. As urgency slips into a normative state of being, for Issue 24, we would like contributors to explore the various meanings of vulnerability. Are there critical practices which uniquely encourage or discourage vulnerability? Can we imagine vulnerability as a position of power? How does visual culture hold accountable social or political processes that produce states of precarity? What are the stakes in protecting technological vulnerabilities? How does the diffusion of images enable personal and social vulnerabilities?

We welcome papers and artworks that further the various understandings of vulnerability. Possible topics of exploration include, but are not limited to:

- Vulnerability in artistic or scholarly production
- Labor, shelter, healthcare, and economic precarities
- Biological, affective, and political contagion
- Climate change and the environment
- International trade and policy agreements
- Network and technological vulnerabilities
- Sharing and distribution of personal information
- Political transparency
- States of emergency, endangerment, crisis, war, and risk

Please send completed papers (with references following the guidelines from the Chicago Manual of Style) of between 4,000 and 10,000 words to ivc.rochester@gmail.com by March 20th, 2015. Inquiries should be sent to the same address.

Creative/Artistic Works

In addition to written materials, InVisible Culture is accepting work in other media (video, photography, drawing, code) that reflect upon the theme as it is outlined above. For questions or more details concerning acceptable formats, go to <http://ivc.lib.rochester.edu/contribute> or contact ivc.rochester@gmail.com.

Reviews

InVisible Culture is also currently seeking submissions for book, exhibition, and film reviews (600-1,000 words). To submit a review proposal, go to <http://ivc.lib.rochester.edu/contribute> or contact ivc.rochester@gmail.com.

Blog

The journal also invites submissions to its blog feature, which will accommodate more immediate responses to the topic of the current issue. For further details, please contact us at ivc.rochester@gmail.com with the subject heading "blog submission."

InVisible Culture: An Electronic Journal for Visual Culture (IVC) is a graduate student run interdisciplinary journal published online twice a year in an open access format. Through peer reviewed articles, creative works, and reviews of books, films, and exhibitions, our issues explore changing themes in visual culture. Fostering a global and current dialog across fields, IVC investigates the power and limits of vision.

Reference:

CFP: InVisible Culture, Issue 24: Vulnerability. In: ArtHist.net, Jan 30, 2015 (accessed Apr 6, 2026), <<https://arthist.net/archive/9329>>.