

Studies on Art and Architecture, 2014, no. 3/4

Kristina Jõekalda, Estonian Academy of Arts

Current issue of Kunstiteaduslikke Uurimusi / Studies on Art and Architecture 2014, vol. 23, no. 3/4:

Debating German Heritage: Art History and Nationalism during the Long Nineteenth Century

The Special Issue 'Debating German Heritage' addresses the German culture and its afterlife in the multiethnic Eastern and Central Europe. The volume offers insights into various cases of art historiography, which was often written in German during the nineteenth century. Introductory article by the editors of the Special Issue (Kristina Jõekalda, Krista Kodres) is accompanied by two contributions that frame the rest of the articles both historically and conceptually: Hubert Locher on the idea of cultural heritage and the canon of art, and Winfried Speitkamp on the history of German heritage preservation and nationalism. These are followed by five more focused case studies concerned with questions of heritage and identity from multiple angles: Heimat as a Baltic German space of belonging (Ulrike Plath), the German heritage of architecture as a cornerstone of Baltic identity (Kristina Jõekalda), the activity of the Society for History and Antiquities Research of the Eastern Provinces of Russia (M?rti?š Mintauris), the construction of national identity via grand exhibitions in Bohemia and Austria-Hungary (Marta Filipová), and finally the Kunstschutz campaigns during World War I that provided the context in which the notion of heritage primarily began to develop (Beate Störtkuhl).

The Special Issue is fully in English.

Contents

Kristina Jõekalda and Krista Kodres,
Debating German Heritage: An Introduction

Hubert Locher,
The Idea of Cultural Heritage and the Canon of Art

Winfried Speitkamp,
Heritage Preservation, Nationalism and the Reconstruction of Historical Monuments in Germany during the Long Nineteenth Century

Ulrike Plath,
Heimat: Rethinking Baltic German Spaces of Belonging

Kristina Jõekalda,

Baltic Identity via German Heritage? Seeking Baltic German Art in the Nineteenth Century

Mārtiņš Mintauris,

Heritage for the Public? The Gesellschaft für Geschichte und Altertumskunde in Riga and the Protection of Architectural Monuments in the Baltic Provinces, 1834–1914

Marta Filipová,

Writing and Displaying Nations: Constructing Narratives of National Art in Bohemia and Austria-Hungary

Beate Störckuhl,

Art Historiography during World War I: Kunstschutz and Reconstruction in the General Government of Warsaw

For abstracts and further data see:

<http://ktu.kty.ee/index.php?lang=eng&cont=3&id=page>.

See also:

<http://www.artun.ee/en/special-issue-on-debating-german-heritage-art-history-and-nationalism-during-the-long-nineteenth-century/>.

Editors of the Special Issue: Kristina Jõekalda and Krista Kodres

Editor-in-Chief: Virve Sarapik

Kunstiteaduslikke Uurimusi / Studies on Art and Architecture is a peer-reviewed journal of art history and visual culture, published by the Estonian Society of Art Historians and Curators. The journal is indexed in:

Arts & Humanities Citation Index and Current Contents/Arts and Humanities

Scopus

Central and Eastern European Online Library (CEEOL)

Ulrich's Periodicals Directory

H. W. Wilson's Art Full Text

ProQuest Arts & Humanities Full Text

ARTbibliographies Modern

EBSCO (Art & Architecture Complete; Art & Architecture Index)

More information about the journal and the guidelines for submissions: <http://ktu.kty.ee>

Reference:

TOC: Studies on Art and Architecture, 2014, no. 3/4. In: ArtHist.net, Jan 29, 2015 (accessed Apr 5, 2026), <<https://arthist.net/archive/9344>>.