Istanbul Through the Ages & Cappadocia

Koç University, Istanbul, Turkey, Jun 27–Jul 12, 2011

Banu Paksoy

Summer Program and Workshop for Graduate Students
Koç University, Istanbul, Turkey

[1] 2011 June 27th - July 29th

A Graduate Summer School Program by Koç University:

Istanbul Through the Ages

For Summer 2011, Koc (pronounced “Coach”) University is offering a specialized five-week seminar examining Istanbul from pre-history to the present. Open to graduate students from all around the world, the program presents the best of Koc University faculty sharing their perspectives on what is the center of several empires through time, with a history spanning millennia: Istanbul.

Koc University is among the most elite institutions of Turkey, with a portfolio of professors who are leaders in their field. The university’s Office of International Programs, along with the Graduate School of Social Sciences and Humanities, and its Research Center for Anatolian Civilizations (RCAC), is excited to extend an invitation to you to participate in a dynamic, in-depth program geared toward graduate students, all the while spending the summer in an exotic city bursting with energy, history, spontaneity and endless roads to travel and discover. With over 12 million inhabitants representing a true melting pot of cultures and faiths, Istanbul—supplemented by the contents of this unique summer program—gives you the chance to enrich your academic pursuits while concurrently enriching your mind and soul.

For the program see: http://istanbulprogram.ku.edu.tr

The list of the instructors for Summer 2011 is as follows (bios and CVs available on the program website):

Dikmen Bezmez, Koç University
Assistant Professor of Sociology

Paul Magdalino, Koç University

Professor of History

Gül Pulhan, Koç University
Assistant Professor of Near Eastern Archaeology Cultural Heritage Management

Rana Özbal, Koç University
Assistant Professor of Archaeology

Lucienne Thys-enocak, Koç University
Associate Professor of Archaeology and the History of Art

Ivana Jevtic, Koç University
Instructor, Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences

Nina Ergin, Koç University
Assistant Professor of Archaeology and History of Art

Alessandra Ricci, Koç University
Assistant Professor of Archaeology and History of Art

[2] 2011 June 27th - July 12th

International Workshop for Graduate Students by Koç University:

Cappadocia in Context

Koc University's Office of International Programs (OIP) and Research Center for Anatolian Civilizations (RCAC) is jointly launching a compact and in-depth workshop geared toward graduate students interested in the rich artistic and cultural heritage of Byzantine and Post-Byzantine Cappadocia. The program offers the unique opportunity to explore the region's spectacular volcanic landscape with dozens of rock-cut settlements, including hundreds of painted, rock-cut churches, chapels, monasteries, houses, villages, towns, fortresses, and underground cities. Through a program that combines lectures, guided site visits, thematic explorations, and seminar presentations, the workshop will explore ways to "read" the landscape and its monuments, as well as ways to write a regional history based on the close analysis of sites and monuments.

For the program see: http://cappadocia.ku.edu.tr

The list of the instructors for Summer 2011 is as follows (bios and CVs available on the program website):

Professor Robert G. Ousterhout, University of Pennsylvania
A leading historian of Byzantine art and architecture

Assoc. Prof. Scott N. Redford, Koç University RCAC
Archaeology and History of Art of Medieval Anatolia and the Eastern Mediterranean, Landscape Archaeology, Materials Science in Archaeology, Ceramics,

PhD. Tolga Uyar, University of Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne
Byzantine Art and Archeology

Reference:

ANN: Istanbul Through the Ages & Cappadocia. In: ArtHist.net, Feb 23, 2011 (accessed Nov 4, 2025), <https://arthist.net/archive/966>.